Vietnam vets find haven in Ontario

Service-oriented group lends hand to needy

By Suzanne Sproul

Outside the small storefront Lemon Avenue office in Ontario, an American flag flapped in the strong winds that recently struck the West Valley.

"America, home of the free and the brave," said Jerry McDaniel as he tried to straighten the banner out.

McDaniel and fellow volunteers work daily to help out the unfortunate, the hungry, homeless or forgotten Vietnam veterans who seem to have fallen through the cracks in the governmental system.

McDaniel is the director of West Coast Vietnam Veterans, Inc., a service oriented group whose primary goal is to help local veterans and their families. He estimated that about 60,000 homeless veterans are in Los Angeles County alone.

But office volunteers won't turn anyone in need away. If you're hungry, they'll give you some canned goods. If you're cold, they'll try and provide you with a sweater or coat.

Ellis Armstrong, center volunteer, said all veterans are welcome.

"I'm a Korean vet so people should know that all veterans can be involved," Armstrong said.

"We're an outreach center, simply a clearinghouse. If we can't help we try and direct people to those who can. If you work with us, we'll work with you," McDaniel said.

Many of those who seek help at the center need professional counseling. Those people are directed to others capable of helping them, he said.

"There's no end to the tunnel in this kind of work, but we care," he said.

During Christmas, the center conducted two food giveaway programs to the needy. No questions were asked, he said.

"We were able to help at Christmas but everyone gets hungry every day," he said.

All private donations and proceeds from items the center sells go toward buying food and helping those in need, he said.

McDaniel and center volunteers hope one day to be able to secure a site where a mobile home community could house individuals and families in need.

But McDaniel doesn't mind having big dreams. He said if people are willing to work together, the goal isn't that impossible.

"Jerry is a very compassionate person. His desire is to help others. It's his dream. . . . His love for those people grows on you. You want to help, too," said Annette Bagby, center volunteer, who got involved with the group after her World War II veteran husband died.

Sheriff's Department's authority made official

By Richard Peraza

Some things just aren't done until the paperwork is complete.

And last week the Board of Supervisors made official what almost everyone already knows: The Sheriff's Department is in charge of search and rescue operations.

"As you know, the Sheriff's Department has performed search and rescue since the beginning of time," Kent Lihme, sheriff's executive officer, told supervisors.

But department officials

"We're involved in cave rescue and mountain rescue, you name it. Some of our people are well known throughout the state."

—Wayne Smith

recently stumbled across an ordinance stipulation that caused them dismay, he said.

Reviewing government code sections dealing with the department's right to collect reimbursement from other counties for rescue of their residents here, they found a reference to "board authority" to perform rescues.

"We searched our records and couldn't find that," Lihme said. Although the Sheriff's Department has been carrying out search and rescue missions for decades, it apparently has never been given official authority.

And although it seems irrelevant at this point, the lack of it could cause problems in collecting from other counties, Lihme said.

A report from Sheriff Floyd Tidwell to the board noted the department receives about $10,000 in reimbursed rescue costs from other counties each year.

There are about 400 people on the department's search and rescue teams and mounted posses, most of them reserve deputies who volunteer their time, talents and equipment for the special duty, according to Sgt. Wayne Smith, who is in charge of the department's volunteer forces division.

The various teams have been locating and helping the lost and injured since the early 1950s, he said. Last year about 300 victims were rescued.

R.C. residents lose out to shopping center

By Lee Peterson

One Rancho Cucamonga neighborhood has lost its bid to change the blueprints of a small shopping center proposed nearby.

Debate over the project has been distinguished by an unusually high amount of council attention, neighborhood meetings and the hiring of a court reporter to take a certified transcription of the most recent public hearing.

Though Rancho Cucamonga's City Council has yet to give official approval to the center planned for a vacant parcel on Foothill Boulevard, majority support for the project was indicated.

Residents did not convince council members to require developers to delete a back parking lot and lower the elevation of the project at the southeast corner of Foothill and Hellman Avenue.

However, their ongoing opposition, coupled with the fact that this commercial center is the first submitted under the city's new specific plan for Foothill Boulevard, has put the spotlight on the project.

Individual council members have met with residents who live south of the site and with the development firm of Nu West to discuss the project and possible amendments to the building scheme of four retail buildings totaling nearly 90,000 square feet.

The residents' committee, led by Onyx Street homeowner Aldo Capocci, has been fighting to change the project since it first was introduced to the Planning Commission in November.

Capocci has repeatedly said that the residents are not opposed to the project. They would like a say in how it is built.

The back parking lot, residents say, will generate noise, trash and privacy problems. They also see it as a "safe haven for criminal activity."

In their discussion of the issue, three council members suggested a laundry list of

Boundary changes will affect 500 students

By Natalie Shore

Hoping to tackle Ontario-Montclair School District's renewed overcrowding problems, the district's Boundary Committee last week presented board members its recommendations for reorganizing boundaries within the 31-school district for the 1988-89 academic year.

Faced with an additional 1,000 students and no new facilities, the 23-member group submitted a 40-page report detailing its recommendations for student redistribution, current disproportionate trends supporting these recommendations and a breakdown of options ranked according to priorities which included relieving overcrowded classrooms, avoiding long bus rides and maintaining neighborhood schools and ethnic balance.

Committee President Kathy Kinley reviewed the report suggesting relieving overcrowded at Mariposa, Kingsley and Ramona schools by re-opening Central School as a kindergarten facility.

Other proposed changes included balancing upper grade students between Howard and Ramona schools, establishing two developmental first grades at Linda Vista School and adding first graders to Lincoln School, now for kindergarteners only. A kindergarten school at Central would alleviate overburdened classrooms at Hawthorne, Elderberry, Del Norte, Berlyn, Margarita and Edison schools.

Proposed recommendations also would restrict students transferring to Hawthorne for the 1988-89 year.

The suggested boundary changes are expected to affect nearly 500 children, slightly fewer than the 600 students affected by 1987-88 modifications.

Parents, faculty and administrators appointed by the board in October served on the committee. Financial implications of the recommended changes were not available.

Public hearings were scheduled for Tuesday in the multi-purpose room at Vernon Junior High at 9775 Vernon Ave. in Montclair, and Wednesday in Central Resource Center's auditorium at 415 E. G St. in Ontario.

Based on public response, Superintendent George Dibs will make his recommendations to the board Feb. 4. The Boundary Committee will reconvene Feb. 9 to prepare its final report and answer any additional board questions.

additional conditions, which they indicated they felt would lessen the impact of the center.

Further landscaping, security gating and architectural design changes were suggested, but have not been required.

Cappocci charged that the residents' arguments have fallen upon deaf ears.

But Nu West President Fred Chan said the opposite is true.

Chan told council members that developers have done all they can to work with residents.

Councilwoman Pamela Wright voiced admittedly "radical" sentiments in saying that the project ought not to be built at all, due to its environmental impact.

Wright said Hellman Avenue, already known for chronic flooding, would be worsened by rainfall runoff from the project.

But Wright's objections were overruled that evening.

Developer sought to build park amphitheater

By Richard Peraza

County officials are hoping to find a developer capable of turning part of Glen Helen Regional Park into a local version of Irvine Meadows or the Hollywood Bowl.

The hope is that the amphitheater area of the park, which is located along the Devore Freeway near Cajon Pass, north of Fontana, can play host to "a wide variety of musical concerts, all types of music, ballets, comedy shows ... a full spectrum of cultural activities," said Steven K. Messerli, director of regional parks.

He received Board of Supervisors authorization last week to begin advertising and gathering proposals for a concessionaire to develop a full-fledged amphitheater.

The present 40-acre amphitheater, built for the 1982 and '83 US Festivals, is little more than a bowl-shaped graded depression in a natural hillside, Messerli said. It is equipped with an irrigation system, drinking fountains and roadways, but little else.

A developer would be expected to design, construct and maintain a permanent stage and amphitheater seating, perhaps 4,000 seats to start, Messerli said. Overflow crowds could sit on surrounding turf areas until the facility is eventually expanded to a maximum capacity of 16,800.

The county doesn't want, nor will the Devore area population stand for, the 100,000 crowds associated with large events like the US Festival, Messerli said.

He said the 16,800 maximum

He said the document sets that number as an attendance limit until amphitheater access is improved. Presently the nearest freeway off-ramp is some distance away so the only entrance is by a two-lane road which must traverse a set of railroad tracks.

Messerli said he'll begin the search for a concessionaire by taking out advertisements in amusement and trade magazines, and sending letters to firms on a list of about a dozen concert promoters and organizers.

The department already had one firm open to the idea prior to the recent meeting, and two more have joined ranks since, "so we feel there's some interest without us even starting," Messerli said.

He'll accept bids through May 9, and stage selection interviews in late May or early June before going to the Board of Supervisors with a proposed contract.

Rezoning near Cable Airport beaten back

By Candysse Miller

A chamber filled with Cable Airport neighbors convinced the Upland City Council to deny a proposed rezoning of land at the corner of Benson Avenue and 16th Street that would have permitted commercial building across from a residential community.

In a 4-0 vote, with Mayor Richard G. Anderson and Councilman Frank Carpenter abstaining, the council denied Milestone Builders Inc.'s appeal of a previous Planning Commission denial of the zone change from Open Space to Light Industrial and Limited Commercial.

The vote followed two meetings worth of emotional testimony from neighbors of the proposed zone change who said that the zoning would bring development that would both decrease the value of their homes and increase the traffic dangers in their neighborhood.

"I only moved here recently," said Wilson Avenue resident Lou Munoz. "Had I known what this neighborhood could become, I wouldn't have bought there. By putting commercial there, you're going to destroy our property value."

In a Jan. 4 council meeting, neighbors packed the council chambers and argued that increased traffic from a commercial site would congest streets and create safety dangers.

Last week, the same group said that they represented the will of the public.

"The citizens of Upland don't want this and I think that's the issue — what the citizens want," said Rick Parsons of Orangewood Avenue.

When it came time for a vote, council members Bob Nolan and Rosalie Kamansky agreed that traffic woes could not be overlooked.

"We're in gridlock now. The traffic will become epidemic in the future because of development to the east of us," Nolan said.

Kevin Knox, who represented the Anaheim-based development firm in the hearings, said after the hearing that revised proposals could be back to the council in as little as a month, however.

In a Jan. 6 meeting, the commission recommended approval of the Light Industrial/Neighborhood Commercial proposal.

Commuter rail study near end

By Richard Peraza

Regional planners are hoping to complete within a month a preliminary examination into feasibility and potential effects of a commuter rail system stretching from San Bernardino to Los Angeles.

Gil Hicks, principal planner for the Southern California Association of Governments' Transportation Division, said study findings should be available in mid-February.

Begun some six months ago, the study material has taken on increased timeliness in light of efforts by state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-Chino, to resurrect a 14-year-old commuter train proposal.

"We're going to be working closely with Sen. Ayala, his staff and his committee," Hicks said.

Even more important, he said, is correspondence from Santa Fe Railway officials indicating they could be persuaded to provide existing routes for the project.

That, said Hicks, has shifted focus of much of the study to use of that rail corridor.

"We have done some very rough forecasts. It's promising, very promising," he said, adding that Urban Innovations Group, connected with UCLA, is serving as consultant for the study.

The report will attempt to forecast how many commuters would actually make use of a rail system if it were made available.

Once that figure is reached, "we can compute how many vehicles can be removed from parallel freeways," Hicks said.

How much traffic the rail will pull off the freeways is important to transportation planners because "it's clear that whole (east-west) corridor is going to be in serious difficulty as far as highway capacity is concerned," he said.

"We've got some very serious problems in Interstate 10 and the major arterials," Hicks said. He added that forecasts call for at least a doubling of traffic in 20 years.

Vacancy filled by directors

By Lee Peterson

Cucamonga County Water District directors have filled a vacancy on their board with the January appointment of a local civil engineer.

Jerry M. Wilson of Rancho Cucamonga will take the seat left by last month's resignation of longtime water board member Victor A. Cherbak Jr.

Wilson, 47, who has had his own civil engineering practice in Upland since 1976, was appointed because of his professional experience, according to water district officials.

"We think at this point he will be a real asset to the board," said director Charles West, who was re-elected last November.

West said the four members of the board who chose Wilson were convinced by the appointee's expertise in engineering and construction.

"I don't think that this board can take a backseat to any other board or council in the area in expertise and professions," said District General Manager Lloyd Michael.

The vacant director's seat was then offered to Richard Alexander, an Orange County public health official, who finished fourth in the November election. Three seats were open.

Alexander, who had made the decision to further his education, declined the appointment.

Wilson was eventually picked after an interview process involving several applicants and potential recruits for the job.

"I felt that my expertise and education might be of some help to the board," Wilson said.

Wilson will serve until November 1989, when his appointed term will expire. At that point, he said he plans to run for re-election.

PAWS to concentrate on animal adoptions

Volunteers hand over their half of kennel

By Candysse Miller

Unable to maintain a volunteer staff at the Upland Animal Shelter, officials with PAWS (Promote Animal Welfare and Safety) have handed over their half of the kennel to Upland Animal Control.

PAWS President Marion Cochran said if PAWS is to continue in the animal adoption business, it must give the responsibilities of maintaining their 20 kennel spaces to someone else.

"I think the responsibilities, the pressures and the amount of work would have been the demise of PAWS," Cochran said. "This will allow PAWS to get back to what we originally wanted to do — put animals up for adoption," she added.

After an intense fund-raising campaign, the volunteer organization opened the new shelter 15 months ago in conjunction with the city.

While the city operated its animal control service out of half of the shelter, PAWS ran the adoption agency in the other, taking care of the strays after they had outstayed their 72-hour quarantine with animal control.

Although PAWS entered the agreement enthusiastically, it soon became apparent that the shelter was overtaxing PAWS volunteers, Cochran said.

"It just became a circus," she said. "People just kind of came and went. If it rained, they didn't show up ... but if you're in a business where animals depend on your care, you can't just shut down."

Untrained and understaffed, PAWS volunteers were forced to perform cleanup and medical tasks they had never done before. The work and the long hours caused strife in the organization, and several long-time volunteers left PAWS, Cochran said.

"There was a lot of pressure, a lot of responsibility," she explained. "PAWS' future was threatened running the shelter."

As of Jan. 1, operation of the entire shelter became the city's responsibility, but PAWS volunteers continue to run the adoption operation. What they won't do is care for the animals.

Upland Police Chief Coy Estes said he does not believe that the change will cause a decline in the number of animal adoptions.

"If anything, it may increase it because it gives (PAWS volunteers) more time to go out there and find new homes (for the animals)," he said.

The change of hands also will mean some changes in procedure, he added.

Although PAWS would keep strays as long as a month after their quarantine period, the city will shorten that time to about 10 days. That's still longer than state standards, which say that animal shelters may destroy unclaimed strays after 72 hours.

Estes said he does not believe that the policy will cause more animals to be put to sleep.

He has requested permission to hire additional help for the shelter so that it can be open for adoptions on the weekend, he said.

ORDINANCE NO. 1418

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF UPLAND, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING SECTION 7511.3 OF THE UPLAND MUNICIPAL CODE RELATING TO THE SEWERAGE SYSTEMS SUPPLEMENTAL CAPITAL OUTLAY FEE

The City Council of the City of Upland finds as follows:

That the current sewerage systems supplemental capital outlay fee provides only for the expansion of regional sewerage facilities and does not provide for the expansion or improvement of the backbone portions of the city's sanitary sewer collection system, and

That, as addressed by the Management Services Institute (MSI) report of June 1987, the development fees to be collected should provide enough funds to allow for reasonable additions to the capital plant, i.e., the sanitary sewer collection system, and

That capital improvement projects over the next five years total an estimated $3,310,000; projected revenue from interest earned from the regional sewerage supplemental capital outlay fee totals an estimated $2,776,000; thereby projecting the funds required to avoid a deficit condition to be an estimated $534,000, and

That the estimated number of equivalent dwelling units (EDU's) to be issued permits during the next five years through the projected systematic implementation of the general plan will be 1,500, and

That the amount to be collected would thereby be $1,300; the amount to be placed in the sanitary sewer facilities expansion fund established per the regional sewerage service contract shall be $950 per EDU; the remainder of the fee, plus interest accrued shall be applied to the local sewer collection system.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Upland does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION 1.
Section 7511.3, Regional Sewerage Supplemental Capital Outlay Fee is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7511.3, Sewerage System Supplemental Capital Outlay Fee

The sewerage systems supplemental capital outlay fee for residential, commercial and industrial structures shall be the EDU number multiplied by one thousand three hundred dollars ($1,300.00). This fee shall be paid as a condition of the issuance of a building permit or a sewer connection permit, whichever is required earlier.

SECTION 2.
The invalidity of any work, clause, paragraph, sentence, part or provisions of this ordinance shall not effect the validity of any other part of this ordinance which can be given effect without such invalid part or parts.

SECTION 3.
This ordinance shall be signed by the Mayor, attested by the City Clerk, and published in the Upland News in pursuance to the requirements of the California Government Code.
